WHAT IS DYE-SUB PRINTING?

Dye-sublimation printing is a technique that uses heat and special inks to create vibrant and crisp designs on fabric. Heat is used to transfer designs from paper to fabric - the heat changing the ink from a liquid to a gas, fusing it with the properties of the fabric - creating clean, long lasting prints. The gaseous state of the ink results in a completely washable, smooth image that's fully embedded into the material. Plus, the quality is high resolution consisting of vivid, vibrant colors. Through this process the dye becomes part of the structure of the material, the images on the fabric don't fade or crack - even after multiple washes.

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS?

There are no boundaries when it comes to printing patterns or designs. Dye-sublimation allows us to create any look using graphics that are printed directly into a polyester fabric.

Printing graphic elements allows us to add fine details into our designs that cannot be achieved with traditional cut and sew methods - which also minimises uniform costs.

It is a common request to add sponsors on the garments. These can be added as part of the design without increasing the cost of your uniforms. Basically, if we can print the graphic element, it is of no extra cost to you!

WHAT COLOURS CAN WE PRINT?

With dye-sublimation, we can print virtually any colour. We use a standard set of printed colours that are commonly seen in sports teams, however, if you have a specialty colour that needs to be matched, we can do that too.

TESTIMONIAL

"Sinalli have been kitting out the North Sydney Bears, both on and off the field, for 15 years.

The designs, fabric technology and quality is great and important in giving the Bears that extra performance required for an elite sports club.

The team at Sinalli are always happy to help, respond quickly and accommodate our many varying club needs. In fact we now call Damien a good mate."

David Perry.
CEO North Sydney Bears.
